"Farmer Member" means anyone who is an owner, retired previous owner, operator or has a financial interest in a farm, whether cropland, pasture, or woodland, including ornamental horticulture and greenhouses. The financial interest may be as a resident or non-resident owner, partner, stockholder in an incorporated farm, a tenant, farm manager or employee. The size of the farm, amount of income from the farm, or percentage of the member's total income derived from the farm, or other employment of the member will not be a factor in determining if the member is a "farmer member," except that a lot only large enough for a house and garden shall not be considered a farm.

2012 Membership Guide

West Virginia Farm Bureau

Anyone can join!

For over 90 years, members of the West Virginia Farm Bureau have been successfully “growing” together. This year we invite you to join your county Farm Bureau. With your help, we can cultivate a better future for farmers and landowners.

Agriculture is important to you

No matter who you are, what you do or where you live, agriculture touches your life every day. Whether you farm or not, the survival and success of the agricultural industry is important to the quality of life you and your family enjoy. We never want to be dependent on foreign food imports as we are on foreign oil imports.

Who we are

Farm Bureau is an organization of people like you...productive, conscientious citizens dedicated to improving the quality of their lives and the lives of those who depend on them. We care about feeding our families, protecting the environment, educating our children and speaking out on issues of concern. It is our organization’s goal to provide leadership, education, information, training and economic service to enhance the quality of life of our members.

One big family

When you join Farm Bureau, so does your entire immediate family including your spouse and any children, up to age 23, living at home or in school. Through your county Farm Bureau membership you also become part of the largest state and national agricultural organizations – West Virginia Farm Bureau, representing more than 23,000 member families, and the American Farm Bureau Federation, representing more than six million member families.

From the grassroots

Unlike most organizations, the membership governs Farm Bureau. Through a process called Policy Development, the grassroots membership establishes the direction of the organization. Because our policies are not set by a president or board, our members have the opportunity to actively participate in setting the agenda for the organization.

A strong legislative voice

Decisions are made in Charleston and Washington, D.C., that affect your farm, your business and the well-being of your family every day. Farm Bureau professional staff is there to monitor, inform and represent you, working with legislative and governmental leaders at the county, state and national level.

Cost of yearly Farm Bureau membership pays for itself

As a member of the Farm Bureau, you will have access to a variety of programs, services and discounts. Each of these benefits are provided for the purpose of fulfilling the mission of the WVFB – to improve, protect and enrich the lives of our members and their families. And new benefits are being added all the time! See www.wvfarm.org for the latest information.
